“I stand here today, amongst family & friends;
We all stand in a church, someone's life ends.
I wonder who it is, what happened and how;
As someone sings, "Amazing Grace, Oh how sweet the sound..."
I see friends & family crying as I make my way to the front;
I look inside the casket & cry out, "I am the one."
I see myself lying there as peaceful as I can be;
I think maybe I'm dreaming, but it seems too real to me.
I rush home to find that no one is around;
except lots of flowers, lying on the ground.
I walk into my home, I find a notebook & a pen;
I sit down & write a letter to my family & friends.
I wonder what to say or how to make their pain end?
I know nothing will help, but hopefully their hearts will mend.
"I'm sorry for the pain that is caused & the tears you've all cried.
My life was really good, so I'll sing you a lullabye.
As you all forget me one day, I'll be watching over you.
So rest assured that I'm okay and you all did the best you could do.
Don't weep for me, for I'm still alive in each of you today;
Please forget the bad times, remember the good things I brought your way.
Remember me forever, but please don't mourn your life away;
I'm gone now, you can't change it, so please put a smile on your face.
The only way you can help me out is to smile for me each morn';
Remember that when I passed on, a new life was born.
Be happy when you think of me, for I'll leave life's lessons here.
Don't regret anything and hold the one's you love very near.
Smile each time the sunsets and laugh each time it rains;
Live life to the fullest and remember-Joy comes after the Pain."

WE LOVE YOU!!!
