“ I was sorry to hear about Mr. Bryan's passing. I can remember when he would play basketball with all of us kids from the neighborhood in his backyard. He was so tall to all of us that it was hard to win any games, but I think he gave us some shots quite often.

Then he installed the neighborhood water fountain for everybody to get a drink. No matter where you were on the street, when you got thirsty you would just go behind Tim & Mark's house to get you a drink.

I will always remember Mr. Bryan from my younger days.

My condolences to the family.

“ My sincerest thoughts extend out to Tim, his mother and siblings. Though I never knew Aaron personally, I can say with the utmost of sincerity that his presence and person was of unprecedented character. I base my belief upon my privilege of being friends with his son Tim, who is one of the finer people I have known for many years. The father, being head and role model of families, Aaron was certainly one of great example by the passage of his example to Tim and the rest of the family. As I struggle with the "reasons why" things like this have to happen and its unfairness, I have chosen (though difficult at times) to believe that this is not the end, but perhaps an end to a development that was not suited for Aaron. I choose to believe that a fate of reward will come despite the apparent finality that is felt here in the material world. After all, something, someone, some how had to create the material world first. Therefore, I believe we will find that once it is all said and done, there truly is "the other side" and we'll all say it was worth having to go through the unexplained mystery because we will reunite and be eternally content. My best, Mark Hester
