“ Patsy and Family,

I was unable to attend Claude's funeral, due to recovery from surgery. I wanted you to hear my Procter and Gamble "Claude" story, although it is likely to be a common one, because of who Claude was, surely he did this for many.

I was a new manager in Towel Converting. I had been transferred to Towel after working in Diapers (Pampers/Luvs) for a year after I was newly hired, and then took a year's leave of absence for my firstborn child. Diapers managers were initially viewed with some suspicion in Tissue/Towel, in some cases, deserved. After I had been in the Towel Converting K1-4 organization for a period of time, a manager two levels up decided to target me (for unknown reasons: although she meant it for evil, God meant it for good). She told me I had 6 months to prove myself, both technically and in people leadership, and she doubted I could make it. Word spread, although I had only spoken to another manager about it. Claude was in my office the next day. He said, "Don't worry, we will help you learn everything you need to know about the equipment." He took me into the shop and out on the line, letting me ask all kinds of technical questions, and offering his considerable (and, I mean CONSIDERABLE) understanding of how everything worked and what could go wrong and how it could be fixed, etc. To the nth degree, Claude taught me mechanical components, process considerations, maintenance issues and frequencies, etc. This was in addition to his regularly scheduled responsibilities, never missing a deadline or a commitment. He was like a guardian angel, a person placed there by the Lord to show me the way. His kindness and generosity came through and this is clearly who he was, even in an environment that could be competitive and not always kind. But he was. Always. He made a "forever" impression on me, and his tutelage gave me the courage and the knowldege to ace the qualifications. I worked there for more than 20 years before retiring. I have Claude to thank. I also thank you, Patsy, because you were so dear to him, and your steadfast love and support enabled him to do his work heartily, as for the Lord. He loved his family and spoke of you all often. God bless you all, you will be in my prayers.

Claude was always there for me when I needed anything! I lived next door to him and Mrs. Pat and I cared deeply for them both! I will never forget your kindness and treating me just like I was family! I will be thinking of you, Mrs. Pat and Mr. Claude, may you R.I.P. and I hope to see you again one day on the other side!
