“ To the Dellinger Family:When we lose a dear loved one in death we are saddened and grieved by our loss. Words cannot express the desire we may have to spend an eternity with our dear ones. This is because our Creator created us with the desire to live forever. (Ecclesiastes 3:11) Yet because of sin, we die. But our dear heavenly Father did not leave us without hope. By means of his dear son, Jesus, we have the opportunity to live again and because of this gift, it will be forever. (Romans 6:23)May you find comfort in knowing that the resurrection is sure to take place and we all who have lost someone in death will have the opportunity to enjoy everlasting life with them. (Acts 24:15)

“ Doris Dellinger was a caring, beautiful and loving woman. She was very athletic as well as a talented painter. Most of all she was so good with children and delighted in having them around. Though she never had children of her own, she "adopted" many within our family. We loved to listen to her stories whenever we came to visit. She taught my family about southern hospitality and good down home cooking. I'll never forget all the special things she did with my sister and I when we were growing up. The world lost a special woman yesterday, but she will remain in our hearts and thoughts always.

“ Aunt Doris was like a grandmother to me. I was so lucky that she lived close to my grandparents and I got to see her every time I visited:) I loved her very much and miss her, but I am happy she lived a good, long life and still had her wits about her. She was one of the wittiest people I knew and I will miss her and her stories told with conviction. They usually started or ended with "I'm telling you..." and "You wouldn't believe it Camille!" One in particular was about her cat, DC (Doris' cat), and how fat and lazy he was and wouldn't even chase a squirrel that was eating his food right in front of him on the porch! He just sat and watched him. I laughed and she said, "He did! He did! You wouldn't believe it Camille!" She loved that cat so much because he would just sit in her lap for hours. Doris was a talented painter and wonderful cook. She taught me how to make a killer caramel cake and peanut brittle and I wish I would have had a chance to learn how to make her divinity candy that was to die for! I will miss her very much, but my memories will live on and her stories will be told through me and other loved ones. I Love you aunt Doris!
