“ My sweet Dad. How could I ever fit all our wonderful memories in this little box? Impossible, so I'll just have to share one of my favorites. In your gray Camaro with the tee tops off driving to Georgia for the summer. I had my feet out the window from the back seat. All was right in the world when all of a sudden a bumble bee flies down my shorts & stings my bottom! Not once, twice, but three times! You killed that bee with what I'm sure was the sports section of the paper, and we watched as my stings swelled up! You bought me icee's, twizzlers & juju bees by the dozen to make me comfortable the rest of the trip. I remember watching you look back 5 or 6 times down at the floor board just to make sure you got it! You gave me that nickname "3B" that summer, and called me that for what seemed like a decade. The TLC you showed me that day was so genuine. It's hard for me to accept that you are gone for now. I remind myself constantly that you are cancer free and pain free & that I will see you again someday. I miss you Dad and love you always.
