I was saddened to hear about your father's death, Sheryl and hated that I couldn't be at the celebration of his life. I remember when your Dad sang at my father's, Dave Mercer, funeral and it meant so much to me. Your father touched many lives with the service work he did and with his love for music, family and friends. My thoughts and prayers are with you and your family.

Joe served as my mentor and coach through the Elks Lodge, the Masonic Lodge, the Scottish Rite, the Shrine, the Exchange Club and a great part of my personal life. Joe was always there for me! He was a special person and was never embarrassed to tell you that he loved you! “ I first met Joe when I was playing at the Moose Club @ 10 years ago. Joe would tell you that most of the time when people tell you that you should hear a certain local musician, 99 times out of 100 the musician was just awful. Well when I took my first break on that first night I played the Moose, people came up and talked to me and before they left, many would tell me I just had to ask Joe to get up and sit in with me. I met Joe and asked him to sit in. Joe said no, he would wait for another time when he had his sax with him. He came in a few weeks later and just sat his horn in the corner and waited till I took a break and then we chatted and he asked if I minded him sitting in. Well, he sat in and he was not just good, he was great. For one of the few times in my life, he was better than advertised. Joe and I became friends and although he was a wonderful musician, he was a better human being and always a true gentleman. I am sad at his passing but I'm sure God was in need of a good sax player and singer. Special regards to Skip and his wife.

“ Joe was a patriarch not only in his family but in The Exchange Club of Albany. Joe will be missed greatly. I remember a lot of things about him but one that stood out was the number of times he sang at the conventions, both state and national. The Exchange Club of Albany owes a lot to some men that have been in the club and some that are still in the club. Joe was one of them and we will miss him. God be with the family as they mourn the Homegoing of their loved one.
