“ Leona was very dear to me. When I moved to Lake Blackshear in 1990, I went right by her house and would stop in and visit. After Kip died, I could tell how lonely she was and I stopped more often. I was her "drop boy" (the person that takes books from one library to another) and kept her supplied with library books. She loved to read. It was about her only entertainment in her last years. She didn't watch tv. When I moved back to Albany in 2008, she was so sad and said I will never see you now. Well, I decided to make the trip back to her house once a week. I didn't miss many weeks because she was always so happy to see me. She was special and I will miss going to see her. Love to you all. Her friend, Gayle
